

GENEROSITY

vs. Stinginess

Being careful with what I have so I can share.

I choose to

- Share what I have with others.
- Save in order to be able to give.
- Not expect anything in return.
- Give of my time and talents.
- Be kind and encouraging.

Generosity is God's highway to prosperity.
Stinginess is our pathway to poverty.

Generosity in the home includes:

- * Helping family members on projects that cannot be finished alone
- * Giving up some personal free time to do activities with other family members
- * Not wasting money on unnecessary desires, but only getting what is needed

A generous person does not let others actions define their own, they choose to be generous instead of stingy, kind instead of hateful, no matter how others respond.

Benefits of Generosity:

JOY - the more a person gives away the happier they become!
FRIENDSHIP – Generosity means giving your time, attention, talents to help and encourage others, this will lead to many friendships!

Small, yet agile and streamlined, little penguins are also amazing parents and guardians for their vulnerable young. Together, in an amazing display of self-sacrifice, pairs of little penguins build the nest, incubate their eggs, feed the chicks and spend many long days out hunting fish in open water. All these things are essential for the survival of their young.

Personal Evaluation

How generous are you?

Are you living as frugally as you can, so you have more to reinvest?

Have you rejected the goal of being rich in money, but made it your goal to be rich in good works?

How often have you sacrificed things you wanted in order to give to the needs of others?
